THAT ghastly night of March 26, 1971 when "Yahya" let loose his army of bloodthirsty freedom fighters and peace-loving people, was the scene in Chittagong Radio Station. The bunker of the last vestige of their hopes and aspiration.

At the peak moment of our life, the "March 26, 1971" marked the end of the war a moment of realisation of Bangladesh. At last, the Chittagong Radio Station was silent. It was decided to transmit the Bangladesh Radio Station to every house and inspire them to join the crusade for freedom.

There was little time for decision. Dr. Mrs. Manjula Mowar immediately released the message to the world. They along with Mrs. Kazi Home Ara, the announcer of the Chittagong Radio Station, after battling their way to various camps, made their way to the Agradab Broadcasting Station. From there, they travelled to the mission of transmitting the Bangladesh Radio Station.

A group of students handed over to them a telegram containing the Bangladesh Radio Station. At last, the Chittagong Radio Station was silenced. They decided to transmit the Bangladesh Radio Station to every house and inspire them to join the crusade for freedom.

From left: Mr. Ashiful Islam, Dr. Syed Anwar Ali, Mr. Dilip Chandra Das, and Mr. Syed Anwar Ali persuaded them to send a message to Jowar A for guarding the transmitting station. They transmitted the message to the Bangladesh Radio Station. In the mean time Mrs. Kazi Home Ara went to call Mr. Mahbubul Islam, Mr. Belal Kamal and other radio workers from Chittagong Radio Station to their side. Thus the crimson glow of twilight of March 26, 1971, witnessed the materialisation of the Chittagong Radio Station. The long cherished dream became a reality. The Bangladesh Radio Station declared its independence of Bangladesh. It was at last a victory for the Bangladeshi freedom fighters.

A meeting of the students, teachers and people residing in Dacca, held at the Chittagong Radio Station on life (Sunday) at 3 p.m. at the premises of Jatiyo Shramik League, held a meeting in commemoration of the birth anniversary of the student leader of Bangladesh. Dr. Anwar Ali, who holds a number of meetings in the city of Dacca. He spoke of the organisation of the Bangladesh Radio Station.
