PAKISTANI GROUP HELPS BOTH SIDES

Razakars Inform on Army and on Separatists

By MARVIN ROV

Published in The New York Times

CALCUTTA, India, Nov. 16— Although the Razakar group generally has not been known to favor the Pakistanis, the group may be playing a large role in the current conflict.

The role of the Razakar group in the current conflict has been described as follows: the Razakars are a group of Pakistanis who have been active in both the separation movement and the anti-Bengali movement. They have been known to have been involved in various acts of violence, including killings and looting.

The Razakar group has been described as being closely aligned with the government of Pakistan, and has been involved in various acts of violence, including killings and looting.

The Razakar group has been described as being closely aligned with the government of Pakistan, and has been involved in various acts of violence, including killings and looting.

The Razakar group has been described as being closely aligned with the government of Pakistan, and has been involved in various acts of violence, including killings and looting.

The Razakar group has been described as being closely aligned with the government of Pakistan, and has been involved in various acts of violence, including killings and looting.

The Razakar group has been described as being closely aligned with the government of Pakistan, and has been involved in various acts of violence, including killings and looting.